Acknowledgments

From Past To Present is the final project of the Adams County Sesquicentennial observation. Major funding for the book came from the volunteer efforts of the Sesquicentennial Committee who dedicated all proceeds from Sesquicentennial events and sale of souvenirs to the project. Additional funding came from individuals and the Adams County Historical Society. Proceeds from the sale of the book go to the Adams County Historical Society to further its work of collecting and preserving the history of the county.

This book is the work of many hands. It is the result of countless hours of research on the part of volunteers who committed many days and nights to the project. The work began many years ago when the Adams County Historical Society established an archive of county history. The records and other source material used in this book are housed there.

A special word of thanks is owed to: Barbara Weade, for financial and moral support; Cathy Croke, for her year's work collecting the "bad news" of county history and county government; Barbara Morgan, who researched county government, the poor farm, the schools, Easton, Grand Marsh, and many other subjects on request; Roberta Ebert and Elaine Babcock, who put together the map of country schools; Marie Vickers, who has spent decades collecting the history of Adams and Friendship and who generously shared it; Carol Ann Podoll, for the overtime hours spent on the book; Mary Lee Klaus, for organizing the family histories and assisting throughout the project.
