

The Serpentine

Once upon a time in a whole different universe there was a huge town filled with magic. Everything from human to alien to creature was filled with magic. There was only one way to get never ending magic. You had to absorb the special energy ball then you would take the magic out of everything. A serpent did just that!

Who was going to stop him? A scientist, warrior and shape shifter. They thought they could stop him. After all, he was just a snake. The warrior said "I will kill the beast with my axe". The scientist said "I will kill the animal with my splash potions." The shape shifter said "I will trick him by being his mother and swallow him alive." Then they all started to fight.

Then the warrior remembered the snake had absorbed the energy ball. He yelled "Stop fighting!" It grew quiet. He reminded them how powerful the snake was and said they had to be a team. They didn't like the idea at first. They each thought they were stronger than the rest. Then they thought about how they could get hurt or die. They finally agreed.

The shape shifter transformed himself into a sword splashed with an acid potion for the warrior to use. Before the warrior attacked the serpentine, he splashed it with a confusion potion. They carried out the plan and it worked. The characters were known forever as heroes for killing the evil serpentine.
