

The Time Catastrophe

By: Lindey Beaver

One cold winter morning, Zeke was heading to school on his hoverboard excited to see Sam to tell her about Dr. Maniac's new invention. When he got there he chained his hoverboard to the rail and turned it off. He ran over to Sam, and pulled her over to a corner where no one could hear and told her about the invention.

"Dr. Maniac made a time machine!" Zeke blared.

"Wait, what, a time machine!" Sam yelled.

"Brrrrrrrrrrrring"

"We're late!" they exclaimed.

They ran as fast as they could to class. After school they ran to Zeke's house and into the basement. "Woah!" Sam exclaimed as they walked up to the time machine and saw Dr. Maniac sitting next to it eating a sandwich.

"Can we go in it?" they asked excitedly.

"NO! It's not something to play with," said Dr. Maniac.

"Awwwwwwww," they said sadly.

Walking away Zeke tripped on a marble and collided with Sam. They both fell into the time machine. Sam's elbow hit the dashboard. Dr. Maniac had just set the control panel to 10,000 B.C. "Where are we?" Sam wondered.

"Don't you mean when are we?" Zeke questioned smartly.

"Whatever, the handle is broken and we have no gas!" Sam exclaimed.

"Oh great, now we're stuck in 10,000 B.C. and it's raining!" Zeke said with a sigh.

"Let's run over to that cave where we will be safe from the rain!" Sam said.

Little did they know there were cavemen living in that cave. Those cavemen did NOT like visitors or anything in general. They ran over to the cave, and it was very dark. All of a sudden Sam felt something touch her.

"What is that?" Sam exclaimed, "It's not funny Zeke!"

"It's not me Sam, I promise," Zeke whispered.

"Then who is it?" Sam whispered back.

"It's a caveman, RUN!" Sam screamed. It was too late because they had already grabbed Zeke and Sam, dragging them further into the cave.

Zeke took his phone out of his pocket and shook it. The bright light made the caveman let go of the time travelers.

"Wait, show them all the neat things your phone case can do. They might not kill us!" exclaimed.

He pulled the mini lighter out of the side of the case. All the cavemen stopped in amazement.

"You can have this if you can find us some gas," Zeke told them.

The cavemen led them further in the cave and showed them a hole in the ground filled with gas.

"YES!" Sam and Zeke exclaimed together.

They carved a bucket out of rock and filled up the tank. Then realizing they could also carve a handle out rock. The pair fixed the handle, set the time to 2040, and with a flash of light they were home. Dr. Maniac hugged Sam and Zeke so hard it felt like their eyes were going to pop out. When Dr. Maniac finally stopped asking them questions, and they walked home.